interlock

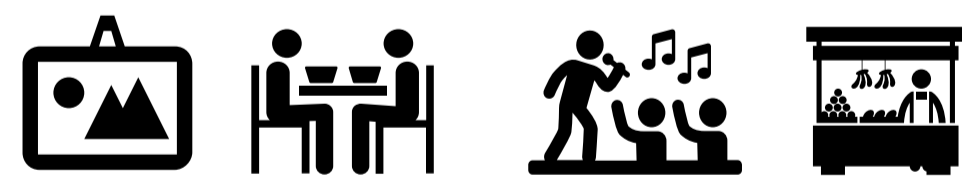

The gateway to Tottenham's new warehouse district, interlock provides a space for North London creatives to engage and display. An evolving programme of markets, galleries, performance and dining spaces it will host a variety of events year round.

community

A gallery space creates a quiet enclosure, open to the public and showcasing the work of local creatives. Top lit by creating cavities within the modular construction system, interlock creates a unique space within the warehouse district, wherein adaptable plinths and partitions allow for the curation of immersive displays.

The central Cafe offers a rolling residency to local food producers, caterers and chefs. Within a flexible longspan space, events of all scales can take place, with food and activities from local initiatives.

The large span hall is fully adaptable to the needs of the community by day and night. By day the space could be adapted to vendors in a market, whilst by night the space can be transformed for performance.

adaptability

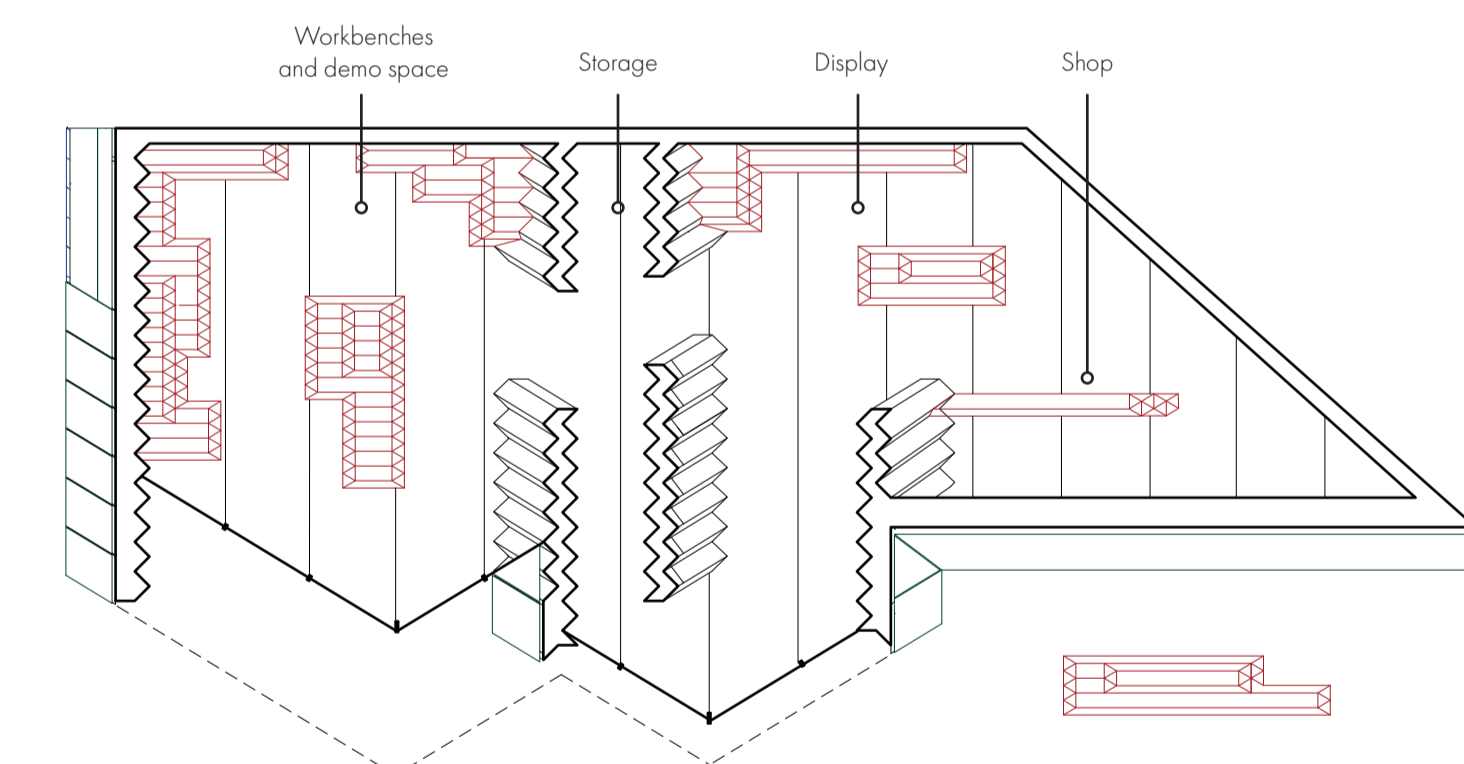

The modular construction system of triangulated elements allows for maximum adaptability across the pavilion. Each module is sized 1500mm x 300mm x 300mm, ensuring it is easily carried by building users.

The pieces can be adapted to create everything from seating to market stalls. A secure system of mechanical fixings means the modules can be adapted for structural purposes, whilst the texture of the Spruce plywood boxes provides a hardwearing finish for counters and tables to studying, working or dining.

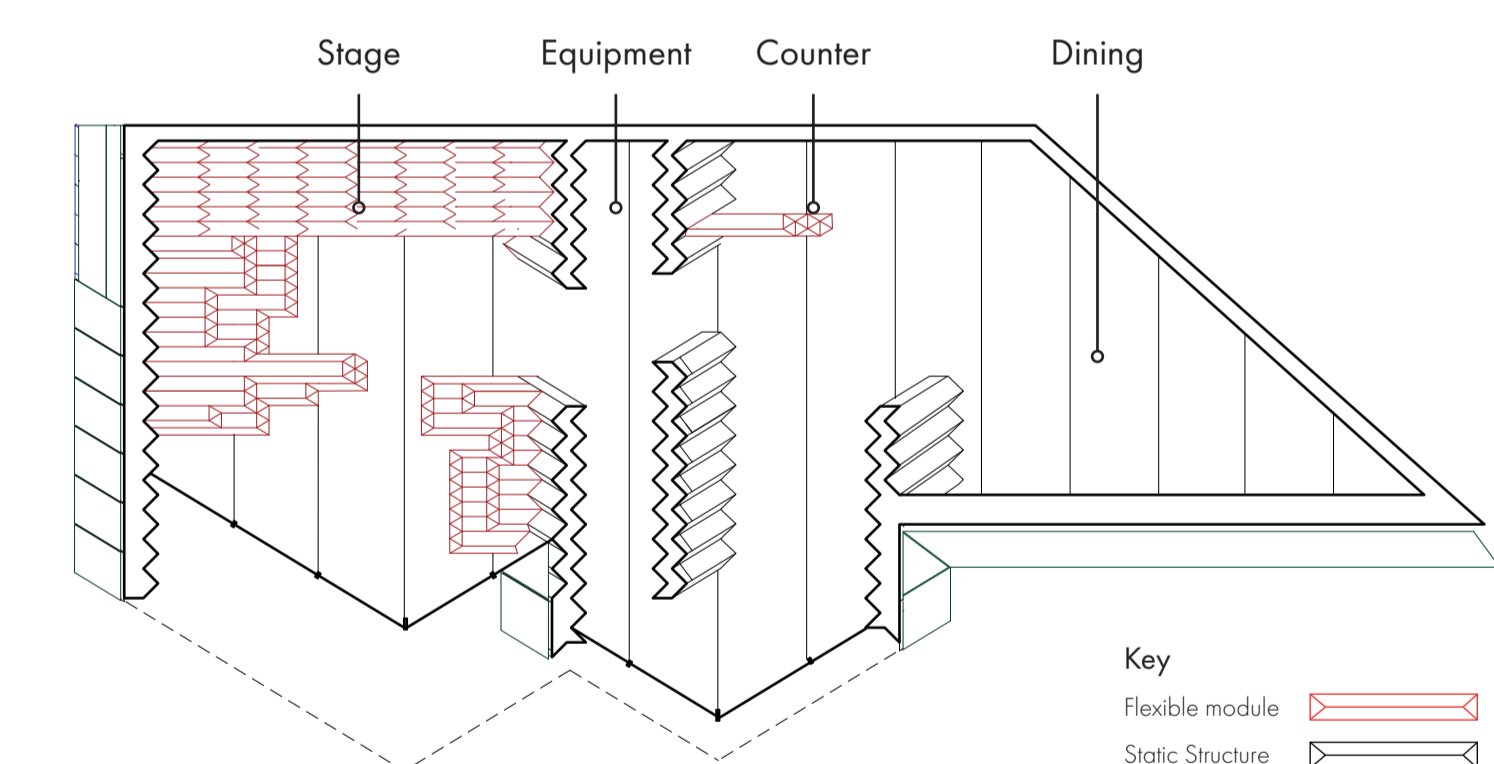

The modular system can be adapted to the desired functions and activities of the pavilion.
